

KEN WILKINSON

Ken Wilkinson is an animal nutritionist with a special interest in horses, being a horse owner himself. Currently working at Otter Co-op, he spends many hours on the phone, by email or in person discussing feed problems and offering solutions. He also has been known to visit farms as well. He is a great teacher who passes along his knowledge of the science of feeding horses and equine nutrition to anyone who asks. He is as concerned with the backyard horse as he is with high performance athletes, the one horse owner or the manager of 40 or more. The staff he works with at the Otter Co-op feed mill enjoy working with him and see how much he gives to the horse community. Ken's contribution to the horse community is being recognized in 2004 with the prestigious Horse Person of the Year award.
