

RANDY BRODOWAY

When Randy moved to 100 mile house in 2005, he met a lot of people who really needed help with their horses, so he began helping those who wanted it. A few riders who liked reining got together with Randy and started the 100 Mile Sliders, and Randy donated about 4 hours of his time every Thursday night to teaching the others about reining, and three of the 100 Mile Sliders are doing well in reining shows. Injured in a logging accident in 1992 and unable to go back to work, Randy has a leatherwork business and over the years he has sponsored many events with prizes and his own time, including: Little Britches Rodeo, Cowboy Olympics, various penning and cutting competitions, West Coast Thunder Drill Team, Cariboo Cowgirls, 4-H and Rodeo queens. The 100 Mile Sliders are glad to have Randy back home after his recent heart attack.
